Check one of the following, which should be accompanied by the requested supporting documents to be considered.

Medical reason. Requests for exceptions based on medical reasons must be accompanied by medical documentation from a licensed US medical doctor, doctor of osteopathy, or licensed clinical psychologist including diagnosis, treatment, statement indicating why student is unable to enroll full time, specific dates between which student cannot attend courses, and prognosis (anticipated duration). If you will not be attending ANY courses, an additional detailed documentation is required.

Graduate Student engaged in thesis or dissertation research. Attach a copy of your complete transcript (s). Anticipated date thesis will be completed: _____

Academic difficulty: only applicable to new students in their first semester. Please select the appropriate reason below:

- Initial difficulties with the English language or reading requirements
- Unfamiliarity with US teaching methods
- Improper course level placement

Final semester. No additional courses are required to complete my degree. Attach proof of graduation (can be found on your MyLewis portal under degree works).

- Note: for undergraduate students, tuition is standard for a minimum of 12 credits. Please note: If studying less than 12 credits, you will be charged tuition per course, and not the standard tuition rates. Scholarships will not apply to students studying less than 12 credits.
- One class remaining: A student’s last and final class (i.e., capstone or any other required course) must be taken in-person to maintain legal F-1 visa status. A Hybrid/Blended course may be acceptable but requires DSO review.
